What if I need additional hardware or software – how do you charge for that?

In most cases we can supply new software and hardware components such as hard drives, RAM and networking kit using our established network of suppliers. The prices for this additional hardware will be supplied to you before any work commences. However, if you would prefer to purchase the hardware or software yourself and let our technicians professionally install it - this can be facilitated.

I just need some advice before I buy some new hardware (software or Cloud-based solution). Is that something you do?

If you're are thinking about procuring new software, Cloud-based services or hardware such as PCs, Macs, printers, storage devices or networking equipment for your office, but need some experienced advice before buying - please feel free to contact us. We're here to help.
